STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

POLICY TITLE: Readmission at the Graduate Level

OVERVIEW: An explanation of the consequences of academic dismissal, including the required interval between dismissal and reapplication, consideration of previously earned credits, and limit on the number of readmissions.

OFFICE/DEPARTMENT RESPONSIBLE: Graduate Studies

DATE UPDATED: Senate resolution #32: 2001-2002, June 2009

Readmission at the Graduate Level after Academic Dismissal

Readmission to either the same or another graduate program at The College at Brockport is not guaranteed. Readmission and acceptance of any previously earned credits are at the discretion of the graduate program to which the student has reapplied. Graduate students can be readmitted to graduate study at The College at Brockport a maximum of one time. Individual programs may set requirements more restrictive than this policy. Students who are readmitted must meet the requirements in effect at the time of readmission and must meet with their advisor to design a new Plan of Study.

As provided in the Academic Dismissal policy, a student who has been academically dismissed from any graduate degree program at The College at Brockport must wait at least one calendar year before applying and enrolling in any graduate course at The College at Brockport.

Please note carefully that a student's graduate-level grade point average (GPA) is not adjusted as a result of readmission. On readmission, the cumulative GPA remains as reflected on the official transcript at the time of dematriculation or dismissal; therefore, making it more difficult for a student to secure the 3.0 GPA that is required for completion of a graduate degree program. Students who are readmitted to the College following de-matriculation or dismissal must complete a minimum of 12 credits in fulfillment of degree requirements after readmission.
