Elimination of Provisional Certificate as a Requirement for Entry into Master of Science in Education Degree Programs in the Department of Curriculum and Instruction

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN EDUCATION

A Master of Science in Education may be earned in the following curriculum specialties. Under unusual circumstances, students possessing a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution but not holding a New York State provisional certificate may be accepted as candidates for the Master of Science in Education Degree. Students possessing a provisional teaching certificate upon entering the program may apply for institutionally endorsed permanent certification upon completion of certification requirements and degree requirements.

The above to replace:

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN EDUCATION

A Master of Science in Education may be earned in the following curriculum specialties. New York State provisional certification is a prerequisite for each degree and permanent institutional endorsed certification is available upon application by those students completing the degree requirements.
